Jefferson Univ. Hospital evacuated

A small fire broke out inside Thomas Jefferson University Hospital Thursday morning. Executive Fire Chief Richard Davison said that a generator in the basement leaked 200 gallons of diesel fuel around 6:30 a.m., prompting the blaze. It was extinguished by the hospital's sprinkler system and placed under control by the Fire Department shortly before 8:20 a.m. Davison said there were no injuries or evacuations. METRO

An event, called "Building Adventure" and organized by a group called Over the Edge, which has staged skyline plunges in other cities to raise money for charity, is helping some, including Mayor Michael Nutter, climb down 20 stories of a Center City highrise. Each participant committed to raising at least $2,000 toward a total goal of $160,000 for Outward Bound. Those who raise $3,000 will receive a helmet camera and a DVD copy of the footage. Spanier charged in PSU 'conspiracy of silence'

Disgraced president allegedly worked in tandem with other top school officials, state AG Also faces endangering welfare of children, perjury

Former Penn State University President Graham Spanier was charged Thursday with perjury, endangering the welfare of children and obstruction for allegedly helping to cover up the Jerry Sandusky sex abuse scandal almost a year after the former coach was charged.

Authorities also filed new charges against former University Senior Vice President for Finance and Business Gary Schultz and former Athletic Director Tim Curley, accusing them of concealing information about Sandusky's suspected abuse.

Pennsylvania Attorney General Linda Kelly said Spanier, Schultz and Curley were engaged in a "conspiracy of silence," which continued even after the grand jury investigation began.

"This is not a mistake, an oversight or a misjudgment," Kelly said. "This was a conspiracy of silence by top officials at Penn State, working to actively conceal the truth, with total disregard to the suffering of children."

The latest charges were a result of pertinent emails and other key evidence authorities obtained in April 2012, after the top administrators were gone, Kelly said.

"This was a conspiracy of silence ... to actively conceal the truth, with total disregard to the suffering of children."

KELLY, ATTORNEY GENERAL

The grand jury presentment, much like the Freeh report released months ago, alleges that Spanier, Schultz and Curley knew about alleged incidents involving Sandusky in 1998 and 2001, and exchanged several e-mails, but lied about their knowledge to the grand jury last year. They also allegedly made no attempts to comply with subpoenas from authorities during the investigation. SOLOMON D. LEACH

Spanier reps claim Corbett vendetta

Spanier was placed on paid leave from a faculty position by the university following Thursday's charges. His lawyers maintained their client's innocence, claiming it was the result of a personal vendetta by Gov. Corbett.

"[Thursday's] presentment is the latest desperate act by Governor Tom Corbett to cover up and divert attention away from the fact that he failed to warn the Penn State community about the suspicions surrounding Jerry Sandusky, and instead knowingly allowed a child predator to roam free in Pennsylvania." Judge won't rule again on voter ID

The Pennsylvania judge who barred the state from enforcing a Republican-backed requirement for voter photo-identification in the coming election declined a request that he clear up confusion about the status of the law.

Commonwealth Court Judge Robert Simpson in Harrisburg ruled Oct. 2 that while election officials can request an ID on Election Day, voters without one can cast ballots that will be counted. Today, he rejected a request that he review or supervise the state's compliance after advocacy groups complained that the state Department of Aging is falsely informing voters that they must have an ID to vote.

Simpson said he "considered and expressly rejected" giving himself an oversight role a month ago and said in a written opinion today that he stands by that decision. BLOOMBERG

Pa. in play for Romney

A new poll released on Wednesday is the latest indication that Pennsylvania, which has not voted Republican in a presidential race since 1988, could do so again next week.

In one month, an 11 percent point lead held by President Barack Obama has dwindled to 4 points, according to a survey by Franklin and Marshall College's Center for Opinion Research.

While few are predicting a victory by Republican Mitt Romney, the state is now in play, with its haul of 20 electoral votes, two more than Ohio. REUTERS

N.J. slogs on as power outages likely to linger

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Regina Yahara-Splain cleaned out her home in Highlands, N.J., Thursday after it was damaged by Hurricane Sandy

Two days after Hurricane Sandy left the tri-state area, nearly one million Pennsylvania and New Jersey residents were still without power Thursday as crews grappled with record outages.

In Pennsylvania, roughly 75 percent of affected PECO customers had power restored, but 200,000 households were still in the dark, officials said. Sandy shattered the previous record of 540,000 outages during an ice storm in 1994. The biggest problem was in Bucks County where about 110,000 customers remained without power.

"We're estimating that we can get 80 to 90 percent restored by midnight [Friday], and we think we can get the remaining customers restored over the weekend," said PECO spokeswoman Martha Phan.

In New Jersey, 781,000 customers were still without electricity Thursday, according to PSE&G, which had more than 1.7 million customers affected. The utility company estimated it might take another week before power was fully restored.

"Right now, our best estimate is we'll have everyone back within the next seven to 10 days," PSE&G spokeswoman Melissa Ficuciello said.

She said crews were working to clean up flooded substations and switching stations in central parts of the state.

"We can't restore more customers until that's completed, so we're working on that," she said. SOLOMON D. LEACH

News in brief

No arrests yet in babysitter murder

Police on Thursday said that there have not yet been any arrests in the shooting death of a teen girl in the Wynnefield Heights section of West Philadelphia on Tuesday night.

Sherita Hamilton, 19, was babysitting her seven young cousins, all of them between the ages of two and 11, when she opened the door to a man that was fleeing two gunman, investigators said on Wednesday.

The men continued to fire, hitting the facade of the home several times and striking Hamilton once in the head. She died in the doorway. Though police took at least one young man to the station for questioning, no charges have been filed in connection with the homicide. METRO/AW

Refineries struggle to come online

Flooding at the second-largest refinery on the U.S. East Coast plus power glitches at two other plants and a key New Jersey terminal hub slowed the recovery in fuel supplies disrupted by Hurricane Sandy.

While the region's biggest plant, in Philadelphia, and several others were ramping up operations after escaping damage, other facilities, pipelines and terminals were struggling to restore the flow of supplies that had slowed to a trickle. REUTERS

Gasoline lines up, death toll on rise from hurricane

Death toll up over 80 across all of North America
Millions without power Gas stations now depleted

New Yorkers awoke to the rumble of subway trains for the first time in four days on Thursday and the death toll continued to rise from the former Hurricane Sandy, one of the biggest and most devastating storms ever to hit the United States.

Lines formed at gas stations amid fuel shortages around the U.S. Northeast and emergency utility crews struggled to reach the worst hit areas and restore power to millions of people.

At least 82 people in North America died in the superstorm, which ravaged the northeastern United States on Monday, and officials said the count could climb higher as rescuers searched house-to-house through coastal towns.

Authorities recovered 15 bodies from Staten Island, including two boys aged 4 and 2 swept from their mother's arms by floodwaters. In all, 36 people died in New York City.

In hard-hit New Jersey, where oceanside towns saw entire neighborhoods swallowed by seawater and the Atlantic City boardwalk was destroyed, the death toll doubled to 12.

About 4.7 million homes and businesses in 15 U.S. states were without power on Thursday, down from a high of nearly 8.5 million, which surpassed the record 8.4 million customers who went dark from last year's Hurricane Irene.

More than half of the gas stations in the city and New Jersey remained shut due to power outages and depleted fuel supplies. Before dawn, long lines formed at gas stations that were expected to open. REUTERS

NBC plans benefit show

NBC will air a concert featuring singers Bruce Springsteen, Jon Bon Jovi and Christina Aguilera on Friday to benefit victims of monster storm Sandy, which devastated parts of the U.S. Northeast with flooding and winds this week.

The special will be broadcast on the networks of NBC Universal, and money collected from the program will be donated to the American Red Cross relief efforts, NBC said on its website.

The benefit concert will be hosted by Today's Matt Lauer. Along with Springsteen, whose songs often center on his upbringing in New Jersey, most of the performers are from areas hit by the storm. REUTERS

Sandy could cost $20B

Disaster modeling company Eqecat estimates monster storm Sandy caused up to $20 billion in insured losses and $50 billion in economic losses.

The insured loss estimate is double what Eqecat forecast previously, due to subway and electrical outages. REUTERS

Politician calls rape 'inflicting violence onto a woman's body'

Tea Party politician John Koster, the Republican nominee for a hotly contested congressional seat in Washington state, says he opposes abortions, even in cases of "the rape thing," because it is tantamount to inflicting "more violence onto a woman's body."

The Snohomish County councilman made the comments during a weekend fundraising appearance in the Puget Sound city of Everett, north of Seattle, that was captured in a recording released on Wednesday by the liberal activist group Fuse Washington. REUTERS

Car sales to fall short due to Sandy

General Motors Co and Chrysler Group LLC both reported their strongest U.S. sales for the month of October since the financial crisis sent both U.S. automakers into bankruptcy, but the destruction of storm Sandy will cause the sector to miss overall sales expectations.

Ford Motor Co's sales last month edged up 0.4 percent, while Toyota Motor Corp's sales rose about 16 percent.

GM sales rose 4.7 percent to 195,764 vehicles, while those at Chrysler, an affiliate of Italy's Fiat SpA, increased 10 percent to 126,185 vehicles. Both totals were the best either automaker had seen since 2007. REUTERS

Obama stumps again

After three days of attending to Sandy relief, president back to campain Uses positive message

After three days of focusing on superstorm Sandy, President Barack Obama returned to the campaign trail on Thursday with a more "affirmative" message to win over undecided voters in the final days of the race for the White House.

47 Percent of likely voters plan to vote for Obama according to yesterday's Reuters-Ipsos poll. Romney was just behind at 46 percent.

With polls showing a tight contest between the Democratic incumbent and Republican challenger Mitt Romney before Tuesday's election, Obama will use trips to political battleground states to make a closing appeal for a second term.

That argument will touch on points he has made for months about the choice between competing Republican and Democratic visions, Obama advisers said, but it will put more weight on Obama's ideas for the future and could resurrect some of the hopeful themes that helped him win election in 2008.

"You're going to see him lift up ... the vision of what we're fighting for," senior campaign strategist David Axelrod said in an interview last week before the storm, adding the construction of Obama's "stump" speech would alter slightly in the final days.

The president has not given a traditional campaign speech since Saturday. REUTERS

WHY DENZEL TOOK 'FLIGHT'

The A-lister dissects his project choices while offering up some of his recurring dreams for analysis ◐ Playing a pilot struggling with addiction was 'raw'

We at least now know how Denzel Washington would answer the age-old question of which super power is better to have, invisibility or flight. "I have a flying dream. I've had it for most of my life," Washington says, opening himself up to amateur dream interpreters everywhere. "Somehow I always end up near the city and I go underneath bridges. And I would just work my way down, and I'd stay under them. Then I would have the other part of the dream, it would be this takeoff forever, and I would be like, 'Oh, I've got to stay below the street wires.' And then I'm starting to go back up, but then, you know, I've got to get back below the wires. I don't know what it means. I have no idea about what it means."

Washington engages in a slightly different kind of flying in "Flight," his latest film from director Robert Zemeckis. In it, the Oscar-winner portrays a talented but troubled pilot who brazenly lands a malfunctioning plane with minimal casualties — but he happens to be coming off a booze- and cocaine-fueled bender at the time. What unfolds is a man lauded as a hero and forced to face his demons at the same time.

The role was definitely a challenge for Washington — but then again, he likes a challenge. "I wouldn't say it was easy," he says of playing out the turmoil of his character's life. "But you're raw. It was just raw. Your nerves are raw."

And it certainly beats the alternative. "You know, tough spots for me are pictures I don't want to be on," he says. "When the people say, 'What's the hardest part of a movie?' You know, if you're on a movie and it's like the third day and you go, 'How many days have we been shooting?' 'Like, three.' 'How many more have we got to go?' '117.' That's a tough movie for me. But this was an adventure." NED EHRBAR/MWN

Quoted

"I wouldn't say it was easy. But you're raw. It was just raw. Your nerves are raw."
WASHINGTON

Keeping project promises

As for what drew Washington to the project in the first place, it turns out making "Flight" was part of keeping a promise to an old, departed friend.

"My agent, the late Ed Limato, the last two scripts he gave me were 'Flight' and 'Safe House,'" Washington explains. "That was a part of it — a promise I made to him."

▶ Denzel Washington stars as a troubled pilot in "Flight," which opens Friday.

'Wreck-It Ralph'

Wreck-It Ralph, the bad guy of "Fix-It Felix, Jr." — the most popular game in the arcade — is suffering a midlife crisis. His job is to wreck but he wants to be loved, to be a hero. It's a can-do story wrapped in a retro gallery of video games in a universe of jarring intensity and candy colors. But without breathing room, it ultimately drags like the come-down of a sugar high.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

CHAN KAM CHUE

▶ Lucy Liu is Madam Blossom in "The Man with the Iron Fists."

'Iron Fists' pack a punch

'The Man with the Iron Fists'
Director: RZA
Cast: Russell Crowe, RZA, Lucy Liu
Rating: R Grade: ●●●○○

Since it comes from a die-hard kung fu fan, you really would expect nothing but the best kind of homage from "The Man with the Iron Fists," the directorial debut of the Wu-Tang Clan's RZA. The film is a great example of a contemporary martial arts movie, drawing inspiration from the classics but providing a refreshing, youthful spin on the genre with a cast and production team the likes of which a new filmmaker could only dream. The movie follows the story of a lonely blacksmith (RZA) who unites with warriors and an assassin to destroy a group of traitors on a path of destruction. With a killer soundtrack, likable characters and a smart, witty script, "The Man with the Iron Fists" is fun, over-the-top and visually pleasing, even for those who aren't kung fu fans. For those who are, it's the complete package.

Reba McEntire is back with a new sitcom Life imitates art when her character moves to California to reinvent herself

COUNTRY COMEBACK

ABC/KAREN NEAL

▶ Reba McEntire plays Reba, a former singer who finds out her husband (Jeffrey Nordling, left) is cheating on her. She moves her kids to California to start over on "Malibu Country," premiering Friday at 8:30 p.m. on ABC.

Reba McEntire has remained at the top of the country music stratum for nearly 40 years — not a small feat in a business that is always hungry to find the next hot young thing.

"Well, it will sure keep you humble real quick by somebody saying, 'Nope, you're not young. You're not sexy. Go do something else,'" the singer says.

That's not something the star has ever had to experience, but her character in the new sitcom "Malibu Country" sure has. In the show, McEntire plays Reba, a singer who put her career on hold while her husband became a country music superstar. When she finds out he has been cheating on her, the fictional Reba moves her mom and the kids from Nashville to Malibu, where she attempts to reclaim her own dreams and a sense of self.

It's a similar situation — minus the infidelity — to what McEntire experienced when she moved her family to Los Angeles to reintroduce herself as a TV star on the sitcom "Reba," which ran from 2001-2007.

"Some of the stories that happened with Shelby [McEntire's son] and Narvel [her husband] and myself while we were [in L.A.], are translating that into this show," McEntire says. For instance?

"One night I was doing the taping of the show, and Narvel had to take Shelby to a school function. Narvel had a couple of bologna sandwiches and a paper sack and went to the country club-looking school campus, and here comes everybody with their ice coolers and caviar and tablecloths," McEntire says. "So it was little things like that that were a huge adjustment for us coming to L.A."

AMBER RAY

That other 'Nashville'

While Reba fights ageism in the music industry on ABC's "Malibu Country," a similar battle is taking place on the network's drama "Nashville," which finds a country music queen (Connie Britton) fighting to keep her throne against the rising success of a new star (Hayden Panettiere). Does the idea of dramatizing her behind-the-scenes life in Music City have any appeal to Reba McEntire?

"No," she says, "I like this one better. I want to play an imaginary character having fun in Malibu. Now, guest starring on ['Nashville'] — that would be a hoot. I'd like to do that."

Movie review

'Flight' tanks

"Flight"
Director: Robert Zemeckis
Cast: Denzel Washington, Nadine Velazquez
Rating: R
Grade: ●●○○○

Is there another A-list leading man who explores the dark sides of his characters as often as Denzel Washington? Will Smith and Tom Cruise will occasionally let the heroic sides of their on-screen personas take a backseat, but Washington revels in mucking around in the mud. From "American Gangster" to "Safe House," he crafts complex characters you wouldn't want to sit next to on the bus.

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

▶ Washington plays a troubled pilot confronting substance abuse issues in "Flight."

Washington manages to subtly capture the ego and hubris that allow his hotshot character in "Flight" to present a sober face to the public, even though the film's visual language is frequently not as refined. A close-up of Washington's hand grasping a mini bottle of vodka and the accompanying swoosh sound is something that should be in a commercial, not in a film about the effects of alcoholism. (Another recent release that deals with alcoholism, "Smashed," is a much more touching and effective story about addiction.)

As much as Washington is enjoyable, the movie could have been more concise. It flits around a half-dozen themes — two or three too many — before the end credits roll.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Talking points

Wood and Bell are married

It looks like those wedding rings Evan Rachel Wood and Jamie Bell were spotted wearing were for real, as the pair has in fact tied the knot, a rep for Wood tells Us Weekly. The small ceremony took place in California on Tuesday, with Wood wearing a gown by Carolina Herrera. "I am so happy for Evan. She is a timeless beauty and her gown in Chantilly lace captures this perfectly," Herrera says.

Moss: 'Years of crying' after Depp break up

It's been 14 years since they broke up, but Kate Moss is finally opening up about her four-year relationship with Johnny Depp, telling Vanity Fair that she felt "taken care of" by the "Pirates of the Caribbean" star. "I really lost having that gauge of somebody I could trust," she says. "[It was a] nightmare. Years and years of crying. Oh, the tears!"

How your favorite stars celebrated Halloween

I never thought I'd say this, but thank God for the Kardashians. With so many East Coast Halloween parties cancelled, such as Heidi Klum's annual A-list soiree (which has been rescheduled as a "haunted Christmas bash"), it was up to those elsewhere to keep the gossip sites running with their spooky celebrations.

First up are those ever-present social butterflies, the Kardashians. Kim Kardashian held a party at LIV nightclub in Miami dressed as Catwoman with date Kanye West coming in costume as Batman. They joined Kourtney Kardashian, who was dressed as Batgirl, while boyfriend Scott Disick tagged along as Robin.

Meanwhile, on the West Coast, noted humanitarian Chris Brown dressed up like a member of the Taliban (complete with a turban and a fake automatic weapon) to head to Rihanna's Halloween party held at Greystone Manor in West Hollywood. And although they donned translucent masks, Kristen Stewart and Robert Pattinson couldn't disguise their identities as they headed to a Halloween party at a cemetery in Hollywood. Also living it up in LA: Facebook twins Tyler and Cameron Winklevoss, who joined Dominic Cooper at a party thrown by Treats! Magazine. Billy Crystal sat courtside at the Memphis Grizzlies vs. Los Angeles Clippers game but didn't join up with Snoop Lion, who wore a spooky mask to Clipper Matt Barnes' "Welcome Back To LA" post-game Halloween party at The Conga Room.

In Las Vegas, Jenny McCarthy showed off her still-hot bod at her 40th birthday party/Halloween party at Planet Hollywood Resort & Casino. Nelly was also celebrating a birthday and Halloween in Las Vegas, but he showed up sans costume at The Bank Nightclub at the Bellagio for a special performance.

And finally, across the pond in England, Gwen Stefani went as Sandy from "Grease" at a bash thrown by British chat show host Jonathan Ross at his home in London. Bandmate and ex-boyfriend Tony Kanal went with her as Danny — no word on where husband Gavin Rossdale was.

215 Festival gets lit again

The literary fest is back with a focus on Young Adult authors — and a weakness for bookish dance parties

After a two-year hiatus, the 215 Festival returns this weekend. Since its founding in 2001, the literary fest has aimed to avoid the typically stuffy vibe of its peers. There are panel discussions and readings with local and international authors — but also concerts, a craft and record fair, a film screening and other events that provide attendees informal opportunities to rub shoulders with participating writers.

Saturday marks 215's first event devoted to Young Adult literature, a genre recently booming from the successes of best-selling series like "Hunger Games" and "Twilight." Among the YA writers participating is Philly's own Elisa Ludwig, the author of "Pretty Crooked," a Robin Hood-inspired story about a girl who steals from her rich prep school classmates and gives to the poor.

"It's a light book, but it's meant for all readers," says Ludwig. "It taps into many real issues impacting all people. Kids are aware of these things; they're important issues in their lives, too. There's a huge interest in YA, and the audience is very energetic and diverse. 215 Fest has always tapped into what's hot right now, and YA definitely falls in that category."

Three more in 215 Fest

Jon Ronson

This British author wrote "The Men Who Stare At Goats," which later became a film starring George Clooney and Kevin Spacey. Ronson's latest is "Lost at Sea," a hilariously critical examination of the ridiculous beliefs people hold and the oftentimes terrifying consequences that ensue.
Friday, 6 p.m., free, Llama Tooth, 1033 Spring Garden St.

BiblioDiscotheque Dance Party

215 Fest isn't just about books; there's live music, too. Among the local artists playing this benefit gig for Mighty Writers are South Philly rapper Lushlife and Light Heat, the new indie-rock band led by Quentin Stoltzfus of Mazarin.
Saturday, 8 p.m., $5, Underground Arts, 1200 Callowhill St.

John Hodgman

You know Hodgman from "The Daily Show with Jon Stewart"

and all those Mac commercials that make you feel stupid for owning a PC (he's the PC). "That Is All," the final installment in his satirical almanac trilogy, supposedly contains all the misinformation you'll ever need.
Sunday, 8 p.m., free, Underground Arts

A lively Day of the Dead

Our haunting holiday may have been a wash this year, but Distrito's ready to party for Day of the Dead

When she wasn't causing floods and property damage, Sandy did quite the number on Halloween. But thanks to Distrito's Day of the Dead party, there's a round two: Jose Garces' modern Mexican restaurant toasts the departed with plenty of tequila and specials on Friday. We chatted with chef de cuisine Susan VanVreede, who gave us the details on our new favorite holiday.

Be honest: How does Day of the Dead measure up to Halloween?
Traditionally in Mexico, the entire town will all get dressed up, everything and anything is decorated, there's tons of food and bebidas and everyone parades down the streets. It's better than a Halloween party because you don't have to wait until dark to start the party — Day of the Dead starts early and the party goes all day and all night.

How is Distrito celebrating?
We will be offering a fantastic happy hour-type menu all night long. People can expect a food menu reflecting traditional Day of the Dead cuisine with a Distrito twist, like gambas a la Mexicana, which is pan-seared Mayan shrimp with Herradura tequila blanco, fresh tomato and guajillo chiles.

What's the scariest food or drink you've ever had in Philly?
Chapulines — grasshopers, a Oaxacan favorite. I actually never ate them, I almost did. I had one right up to my lips but couldn't actually bring myself to open my mouth. Insects scare me. JULIA WEST/METRO

Hot chef

Day of the Dead celebrates the deceased. Are there any Philly restaurants you'd like to see rise from the dead?

I would say Maru Global, but they have been resurrected thanks to Honest Tom bestowing his taco truck upon very talented Ryo Igarashi. The best — and only — place to get takoyaki.

PAIGE OZAROWSKI/METRO

AT LAST, THE ACTUAL VOTE

Metropolitik

TOM FOREMAN

POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT FOR CNN

Early voting, like hipster glasses and going vegan, has been all the rage among the cool kids this year. As best I can make out, everyone in Oregon has already cast a ballot except for an agoraphobe named Stacy who spends all day watching the Lifetime network and calling each of her 27 cats, "Kaiser Wilhelm." I may have heard wrong, but you get my point: A significant part of the election is already over.

Still, if you cling to traditional ways, and are going to trek to your local polling place on Tuesday, here are some things you might want to bring along.

First, pack some snacks. After all the months of buildup any given voting site may involve a long wait (it's like the Department of Motor Vehicles with even less of a sense of humor,) and ever since open bribery fell out of favor, these places have become shockingly bleak.

No pretzel or funnel cake stands. No daiquiri bars. I'd suggest a small backpack with some Nilla Wafers and perhaps a banana. Or leftover Halloween candy.

Second, bring some facts. You can keep them in your smart phone or stashed away in your head, but for heaven's sake try to actually know something before you vote. And get them from a reliable, non-partisan source. Both presidential candidates have so vigorously twisted the truth that trusting either one of their campaigns is a leap of faith tantamount to joining a religious cult headed by a guy named Burt wearing a Packers jersey.

Third, bring some manners. No matter how Democratic or Republican your neighborhood may seem, someone in line is going to see things differently than you do. So under no circumstances should you talk about politics. Talk about non-controversial matters like the Middle East, animal rights, or Mark Sanchez's performance in the pocket.

Lastly, bring a bottle of champagne. Because whichever candidate you choose on Tuesday, we'll finally be at the end of this long national nightmare called Campaign 2012. And that is worth celebrating, no matter who wins.

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author, or any opinions expressed on its pages.

Horoscope

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Being idea-oriented could make your brainstorms superior to your usual thinking. However, it might be smart to write down your ideas, so that you don't forget any of them.

Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Two potentially rewarding developments could present themselves when you're dealing with others. Handle these opportunities wisely and you'll be able to take advantage of both.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. You're not likely to have any trouble finding answers for critical questions that might arise. What might be problematic for you, however, is choosing which solution to use.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. A little self-imposed pressure can enhance your productivity and industriousness. Don't hesitate to tackle several tasks simultaneously, because they'll push you to even more success.

Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If you can't bring everyone together, divide your time between two close friends who are both bidding for your companionship.

Aries March 21-April 19. Give priority to a domestic matter that is currently giving you fits. Manipulate what you must in order to achieve the outcome that would serve everyone the best.

Taurus April 20-May 20. This is one of those days in which conversations with close friends aren't likely to be comprised of idle chatter. Ideas of consequence are more apt to be discussed, so pay attention.

Gemini May 21-June 20. It behooves you to take the time to evaluate your present position and put your financial house in order. Making an in-depth analysis could reveal many buried opportunities.

Cancer June 21-July 22. Unless you have a variety of activities and assignments from which to choose, you're likely to find yourself extremely restless and bored.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Blending your intuitive perceptions with your logical ones could add an effective dimension to your thought processes.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. When involved commercially with friends, make your social relationship with them paramount over the business side of things. Good friends are harder to come by than entrepreneurial partners.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Flexibility and willingness to change tactics as events dictate are just as important as trying to achieve an objective that you feel is personally important. Make sure you have your priorities straight. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

From Reid's lips to Vick's ears: you're my guy

- Coach says Vick 'was, is, will continue' to be starter
- Quarterback holds players-only meeting to inspire

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Vick's 84.3 QB rating last Sunday was the fourth-best the quarterback has posted this season.

The Eagles' quarterback controversy — the same one the media created Sunday night — is officially over. On Thursday, coach Andy Reid made it as clear as he could that Mike Vick would remain his starting quarterback for the remainder of the season.

"I mentioned [Wednesday] that Michael, in regards to that, was the quarterback, is the quarterback and will continue to be the quarterback of the Philadelphia Eagles," Reid said. "My point wasn't that I was going to bench Michael Vick; it was that I needed to step back and evaluate before I came to you [the media]."

Reid took it a step further when explaining his evaluation. Vick played one of his better games of the year, according to his coach.

"I think when you step back and you look at that, with the exception of the drops that took place, I thought he played a good football game," Reid said.

Vick's numbers were respectable. He didn't turn the ball over for the first time in three weeks and completed 21-of-35 passes for 191 yards and a touchdown.

Vick knows he needs to improve on some things, but he never felt like he was getting the bench. He said that conversation, between himself and Reid, never occurred.

"Honestly I never knew or never heard about me not being a starter," Vick said.

The controversy started when a reporter asked Vick what he thought about Reid potentially sitting him. So Vick answered it openly and honestly — without the benefit of having spoken to Reid.

"That was the question that was thrown at me from one of you guys," Vick said. "I didn't know that conversation had [taken] place. It's all hindsight now."

MIKE GREGER
mgreger@metro.us

Players hold own meeting

His recent struggles aside, Mike Vick is acting like a leader in the locker room. The quarterback called a players-only meeting Wednesday to let players vent and offer suggestions on how to save the season.

Seven players addressed the team, according to sources. Vick, Trent Cole, Dominique Rodgers-Cromartie, Jason Avant, DeMeco Ryans, Jeremy Maclin and Cullen Jenkins were among those to speak.

"I'm not going to really get into specifics about what we talked about, but quite a few things needed to get cleared up, and it happened, and it was good for our team," Brent Celek said.

What to watch

The Eagles head to New Orleans Monday night for a prime-time showdown. Here's an early look:

- All eyes on 7. With job security no longer an issue, it's time for Mike Vick to play like an elite quarterback. Vick needs to go back to playing recklessly. This line isn't good enough for him to sit back and wait. Or, as Vick himself stated, "I have to get my swag back."
- Get a sack. Those two sacks last week were mirages. The first one shouldn't have even counted since Matt Ryan just fell down — and the second one was equally soft. It's time for Trent Cole and Jason Babin to stop making excuses and sack the quarterback, or at least to get into swatting distance.

In the news

Patterson expects to return to field soon

Mike Patterson, the same guy coming off brain surgery, expects to play Monday night. The defensive tackle has been practicing and said he feels good. Patterson hasn't played football since January. Right now he is on the non-football injury list. "I feel like, as a player, I can make a difference. We'll what happens," he said.

CARFAX VEHICLE HISTORY REPORTS

Babin offended by 'foul things' Eagles fans were chanting at the Linc

Jason Babin is very active on Twitter. He's ripped officials, poked fun at the commissioner — and his wife went back and forth with a reporter. Recently, he took a few jabs at Eagles fans by questioning their loyalty.

One of the tweets his fan club handle re-tweeted read: "There are 17 teams with the same record or worse than us. Thanks for being loyal fans ... We'll get it right."

Babin, who hasn't recorded a sack since Week 3, explained himself Thursday. (His Twitter handle is @JasonBabin93).

"I just thought there's no place for that in the NFL. None whatsoever. I mean just some of the foul things they were saying," Babin said. "Yeah, I'm going to be protective of Coach Reid, Coach Wash [Jim Washburn] and my teammates. It was upsetting that a few bad apples were chanting that kind of stuff ... but what are you going to do."

When asked to repeat a specific example, Babin grew animated. "I don't even want to repeat what I heard. It's that bad," Babin told reporters. "And I've got a pretty high threshold for adult jokes." METRO

College coach thinks 'Bama could beat NFL teams

Even though his run in the NFL — two seasons in Washington — was brief, he still thinks a college team can beat a professional one. The clincher is, it's not his own team.

"Alabama, gosh, they look like they could beat a couple of those NFL teams that I've watched on Sundays," the South Carolina coach told "The Dan Patrick Show." "I think a lot of the oddsmakers out there that usually know what's going on, I'd guess Alabama would be favored by a little bit."

Alabama is looking for its third national title in five seasons under Nick Saban, another coach who had little success at the NFL level.

Spurrier, of course, has had success at the collegiate level. He coached the Florida Gators to a national championship in 1996. However, his NFL record stands at a disappointing 12-20.

No pressure on Temple, underdogs at Louisville in Big East showdown

- Owls on road against unbeaten Cardinals
- Not expected to win
- Quarterback change on the way?

Following two lost weeks on the playing field — and a couple of lost practice days courtesy of Sandy — here is what's next on the agenda for struggling Temple: unbeaten, No. 12 Louisville, on the road.

But even if you think it's a lost cause for a 3-4 team coming off 35-10 and 47-17 thumpings by Rutgers and Pitt, respectively, the Owls still plan on making the trip.

"We're playing the best team in the conference, so it's a really tall order," said Owls coach Steve Addazio, who spent six years coaching at Florida with Cardinals coach Charlie Strong, "but what I told our team was, you wouldn't want it any other way. The best thing we can do is go on the road, play Louisville against all odds and just lay it all on the line."

With sophomore quarterback Teddy Bridgewater (2,110 yards, 13 touchdowns) leading the way, the Cardinals (8-0 overall, 3-0 Big East) trail Rutgers (7-1, 4-0) by half a game in the Big East. They can't afford any missteps along the way, which is where Temple (2-2 in Big East) comes in.

Nobody expects the Owls, who might be ready to change quarterbacks from struggling Chris Coyer to Juice Granger, to mount a serious challenge. That's just fine with Temple.

"Sometimes the best thing you can have is a great challenge because it gives you an opportunity for a big result," said Addazio. "There's no pressure on us. We just have to play better."

Saturday, when virtually no one outside themselves expects it, would be a good time to start.
